SPoke FROM A BROAD PULPIT. SIGNIFICANT EVENT AT NEW JEWISH TEMPLE. Rabbis and Ministers Follow Each Other in Addresses at the Fellowship Meeting Which Yesterday Brought to a Close the Exercises in Connection with the Dedication of the Synagogue of the Congregation Anshe Chesed—Many Gentiles in the Congregation. Strikingly significant of the progress of liberal thought in this country and particularly in this community was the "Fellowship Meeting," with which the exercises in connection with the dedication of the new Jewish temple came to a close, yesterday afternoon. On the platform of the altar were three rabbis and four Christian ministers, and in the congregation were half as many Gentiles as Jews, the former representing every prominent branch of the Christian church. The addresses by Jew, Baptist, Presbyterian and Episcopalian were one and all filled with the spirit of brotherhood which the occasion inspired, and those who were fortunate enough to be present at the meeting must have been deeply impressed with its lesson. OPENING THE MEETING. In opening the meeting, Rabbi Anspacher, told of an old rabbinical tradition which asks and answers the question why the law was given to the Israelites when they were in an otherwise uninhabited wilderness. It was, the tradition tells, because God wanted to teach them, by giving them the law in no man's land, that it was not for one people, but for all. Israel received the law with instructions to give it to all peoples. "It is not Jewish thought or Jewish wish," said Rabbi Anspacher, "that the law was given to the Jew alone. If you pray with different words and phrases from those with which you worship the same God as we. You have come to rejoice with us on the opening of our new temple. We feel that you can do this heartily, for you praise the same God we praise."

Rev. H. F. Y. Pierce, D. D., pastor of the Penn Avenue Baptist church, was the first of visiting ministers introduced. He said, in part: "I assure you it is with a great deal of pleasure I accepted the gracious and generous invitation of your rabbi to share with you the pleasures of this occasion. I rejoice with you in your new temple, and trust it will be to you and our city an agency of great good. My mind goes back to the old time when the great temple was built, and I recall the closing of the description of that great work: 'And the glory of Jehovah filled the tabernacle.' Your new temple will be glorious to you only in proportion to the infilling of God therein. I hope this temple will be a great glory to you in that spiritual sense; a place of inspiration, of rest from worldly cares, of communion with your God. Seek here inspiration for your character-building as did Hiram, the master builder of the great temple, seek inspiration in the holy of holies. Finally, may it be to you a glorious temple in its inspiration to ministrations, a place where you will learn to love and serve; to go forth to the sorrowing with words of sweet consolation; to go forth to the erring with words of warning, and to go forth to all with that message of peace which passeth all understanding." REV. BATEMAN'S REMARKS. Rev. Francis R. Bateman, of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Episcopalian), of Green Ridge, was next introduced, and said: "I know of no valid reason why I should not grasp the hand of fellowship you have extended me. I do not attempt to disguise from myself or from you the immense difference that exists in our respective theologies. The chasm is so vast that I sometimes not only despair of it being possible to bridge across it, but to see the one side while standing on the other. Yet am I very conscious that the debt Christianity owes to the Jew is enormous. We do not forget that that name which to us is the most revered of all names is Jewish and that Mary, the exemplar of ladyhood, was a Jewess. "We can all say 'The Lord is my shepherd,' and we believe in common that one day Jew and Christian will be every man's conviction can be respected, if he is sincere in that conviction."

The Central Labor union began yesterday what is intended to be a national movement on the part of organized labor against the passage of the Fowler currency bill introduced at the last session of congress. This measure is entitled "a bill to maintain the gold standard, provide an elastic currency, equalize the rates of interest throughout the country and further amend the national banking law."

MINE WORKERS PICKING COAL. The Output from This Source is Very Considerable. The striking mine workers who have busted themselves for long time picking coal from the cun dumps, are not content with following this vocation during the day time, and now work at night. Most any evening scores of them can be found working industriously on the dumps with lamps to guide them, and picks, shovels, carts, bags and even horses and wagons, to dig and carry away the anthracite. Many of them store the coal for their own use, while others sell it at 10 cents a bushel and $3 and even $4 a ton. Many youngsters who pick coal have regular customers to whom they deliver regularly. Efforts have been made to prevent this onslaught on the dumps, but the coal pickers pay but little attention to the guards. Every creek, river, bend, or opening in the valley, wherein coal has found a lodging place, is being "worked" by the strikers or their families. A number of mine workers are engaged in digging for coal on their own properties, where anthracite has been noticed cropping out. Quite an "opening" has been found in the rear of a property on South Rebecca avenue, and it is reported the claim is panning out well. A mass meeting of strikers will be held this afternoon by the West Side locals, in the vacant field on Washburn street, near Garfield avenue. Many prominent speakers will be present. John Livingstone, of Olyphant, was sent to jail Saturday, in default of bail, to answer in court for assault and battery on a Delaware and Hudson tannery.

POLITICAL NOTES. There was a meeting of the Republican county committee Saturday, at which the details of the campaign were discussed. A number of speeches were made by the members, all of which were of a nature that indicates a decisive victory in November. John J. Fahey has been decided upon as the committee's chairman.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL. Special Services Conducted in Holy Trinity Church. In pursuance to an annual custom, a harvest home festival was conducted last night in Holy Trinity Lutheran church. The chancel was prettily decorated with stalks of ripened grain, and directly in front of the pulpit was piled a heap of pumpkins, ears of corn and other farm produce. The exercises were in charge of Superintendent R. H. Brader, of the Sunday school, and were participated in by a number of the scholars. The primary children sang a pretty chorus, and appropriate recitations were delivered by the following children: Wilhelm Bernhard, Mildred Zerbe, Esther Ritter, Mamie Schubert, Nettie Bernhard, Margaret Zerbe, Amelia Fenne and Jennie Seaman. Others who assisted in the recitation of songs and exercises were: Gladys Newhardt, Leah Fenne, Helen Cogdizer, Beatrice Zerbe, Margaret Bohl, Frederick Gerlock and Ezra Stipp. The pastor, Rev. E. F. Ritter, delivered a brief address at night, and in the morning preached a special harvest sermon based on Matthew, 6:28, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin."

An eloquent address on the lessons to be drawn from the life of Kossuth was delivered by Rev. Julius Hamborsky, the Magyar missionary in this valley, who said that memory of the honors showered upon Kossuth when he visited the United States was enough to inspire his countrymen who reside here to become good and loyal American citizens.
